THE LEARNING TREE

by Gordon Parks!

How it feels to be black in the white man's world...

Kansas Reads: The Learning Tree by Gordon Parks is a statewide project that encourages Kansas adults to read, discuss and experience the same book. The project is sponsored by the Kansas Center for the Book at the State Library and promoted by Kansas libraries, bookstores, and others from January 29 through April 30, 2007.

Gordon Parks

"The Learning Tree is the most important book that my father wrote because it was a stepping stone for him personally and professionally. It allowed him to write about the experiences he lived growing up in Kansas in the 1920's and it led to his directorial debut as a filmmaker. It is a great choice for the Kansas Center for the Book at the State Library of Kansas for its very first one-book project. "
